The Saramonic SR-ULM10 is an ultracompact clip-on lavalier microphone with a standard USB-A connector that plugs directly into Windows PCs and Apple Mac computers to capture clear, broadcast-quality sound. It offers easy plug-and-play operation, and the 6.56-foot (2m) built-in cable provides a comfortable amount of length to plug into the computer in front of you. It features an omnidirectional pickup pattern that captures sound equally in every direction, which means you don't need to worry about which direction it's pointing in when you clip it to your shirt.

Ideal for Virtual Meetings, Podcasts, On-Line Classes, Voiceovers and much more

It is so important to have an easy-to-use and excellent sounding microphone to sound your best for so many uses. Whether you are in virtual meetings all day long, teaching or being an active student in on-line classes, recording a podcast, adding a voiceover to your video project, or any other time when you need a great sounding mic. The SR-ULM10 makes it easy to plug in a great sounding mic anytime, that allows you to move freely and express yourself with confidence and clarity.

Every tool to get the job done

The included alligator-style mic clip firmly holds the mic in place when attached to your shirt. A foam windscreen is also included, which diffuses distracting wind noise. A reusable cable strap keeps the wire tidy, and a lined storage pouch with a locking drawstring holds everything neatly when not in use. You get all the tools you need to capture excellent sound quality in any situation, with a package that fits in your pocket.
